

The Walkley Foundation promotes press freedom & innovation and excellence in journalism & the media through the Walkley Awards, long-form journalism, The Walkley Magazine and a national program of events.

communications manager

You will develop and manage communications strategies across all media platforms including the Awards, professional development program, social media and on-line platforms, as well as The Walkley Magazine. You will work with the industry to produce discussions and debates around issues of importance to journalism, media innovation and documentary making.

You are an experienced communications professional with a good understanding of the Australian media landscape and have extensive journalism networks. You're ideally degree qualified with experience working in communications in a media management or not for profit environment.

Ref: 30972

If you want to promote and reward excellence in Australian media, please contact Sadie Kelly on 02 8243 0570 or forward your resume to cv@ngorecruitment.com quoting the relevant reference number.

sponsorship & development

Reporting directly to the General Manager, you will assist with the management of the existing sponsorship program including media stakeholders, ensuring timely delivery and reporting of sponsor benefits across the Foundation's extensive event program. You will identify and develop new sponsor and partner opportunities and build philanthropic profile with corporate and private trusts, foundations and bequestors.

You have a proven track record in sponsorship management, events and ideally philanthropy. Your standing in the sector, presentation, writing and relationship development skills will be critical to your success. Above all, you have a love of journalism and the passion to grow the Walkley brand.

Ref: 30974

