

The WALKLEY Magazine

Celebrating excellence

The Walkley Magazine – Inside the Australian Media is part of the ongoing program of the Walkley Awards – Australia’s premier awards for excellence in journalism.

The Walkley Magazine, issued five times in 2009, is Australia’s major publication dedicated to exploring media issues for media people. The magazine is published by the Walkley Foundation, an organisation run for journalists by journalists.

Each full-colour edition is packed with original stories, opinion, reviews, photographic essays, illustrations and cartoons. Only those journalists, photographers and artists considered to be at the peak of their profession are asked to contribute.

The Walkley Magazine is not only read by Australia’s finest media people, it is discussed, debated and kept as a record of the most relevant media issues of the day.

The magazine for opinion leaders

Readers of The Walkley Magazine are opinion leaders. They form the ideas, stories, editorial, and images that mould our view of the world.

Over ten thousand journalists, photographers and artists across Australia receive the Magazine in their mailboxes. The Walkley Magazine is also distributed to premier sponsors, libraries, universities, media and PR companies and private subscribers.

The readers of The Walkley Magazine are:

- at the media forefront
- influential in leading public opinion
- high consumers of technology, information and books
- people with home office equipment
- regular travellers for both work and home
- considered and thoughtful consumers.

A telephone survey of 150 AJA section members showed the magazine was widely read and popular among members. Ninety per cent thought the magazine was excellent or good and over 70% read 50% or more of each issue.
